A Workshop on "Proper use of gas cylinders at home, possible risks and solutions" were organized on 15th February 2025 in association with 'Women Grievance Redressal Cell' of Gramgeeta Mahavidyalaya, Chimur and 'Das Group of Companies'.

In daily life, we face unexpected natural and man-made calamities that make human life increasingly vulnerable. While some disasters are unavoidable, many can be prevented through awareness and vigilance. Even in situations where calamities do occur, facing them with courage can significantly reduce loss of life and financial damage.

One major cause of preventable disasters is negligence, particularly concerning electrical hazards. Minor carelessness with electric currents can lead to dangerous incidents, but conscious efforts can help prevent them. Similarly, gas accidents in home kitchens pose a serious threat. A sudden gas-related mishap can be devastating, resulting in the loss of lives and property. Tragically, many families suffer immense hardships due to such accidents.

By adopting safety measures and staying alert, we can significantly reduce the risks associated with gas and electrical accidents. Prioritizing safety helps protect lives and ensures a secure living environment.

In order to know about the measures in this regard, this workshop provides detailed information on preventive safety measures along with permitted demonstrations, and careful handling of such incidents in the event of an accident can help prevent potential accidents and prevent loss of life and property by planning protective measures. In this workshop the representative of Das Group of Company Mr. Dnyaneshwar Devkate gave guidance on gas safety and its importance, awareness, risk of gas accident as well as precautions and solutions through the witness.

Principal of the college, Sunanda Aswale, Women's Grievance Redressal Cell Coordinator Prof. Sartaj Sheikh and all teaching staff and non-teaching staff were present in this one-day workshop.
